A Vibrant, Remarkable Future Learning the lesson of the Purple Cow

by Kevin Kozo, Turnberry Construction Group

Greetings everyone,

Let's take a moment to envision a scene:

You're driving down the road as you pass this peaceful, breathtaking pasture in fields of Hempfield; dotted with the usual brown cows munching away on grass when one of the kids falling asleep in the back seat (after a long day at Spooky Nook of course) yell... Look!! It's a purple cow! You slam on the breaks; everyone jumps out of the car and starts taking pictures, texting, posting to social media, sending snap chats... you get the idea.

Now, you might be wondering how this relates to our industry. It's really quite simple. In our line of work, where competition is fierce and innovation is key, being "remarkable" is the name of the game. And that's precisely what Seth Godin had in mind when writing the book The Purple Cow: transforming your business by being remarkable.

His lesson — It's about breaking free from the conventional, standing out, and capturing attention in a way that leaves a lasting impression, the same reason our builders have elevated themselves to the BIA's signature event: the Parade of Homes. It's about pushing boundaries with design, and innovation; offering something truly remarkable to your clients and those coming to meet you in the years ahead.

So, how do you become THE purple cow in the field? It starts with a commitment to excellence and a willingness to think differently. Whether through innovative design, impeccable craftsmanship, or outstanding customer service, there are countless ways to distinguish ourselves from the herd.

But let's not sugarcoat it — being remarkable requires effort and dedication. It means staying ahead of the curve, constantly seeking ways to improve, and never settling for mediocrity.

So, I challenge each and every one of you to embrace the spirit of the purple cow. Let's continue to strive for excellence, push the boundaries of what's possible, and show the world why we're the best at what we do here in Lancaster County.

Here's to building a future that's as vibrant and remarkable as a field full of purple cows.

Kevin Kozo

Honorees Named to the List of 2024 Forty Under 40 Award Recipients

Regional accounting and advisory firm Trout CPA is pleased to announce that Jason C. Herr, CPA, CCIFP, Partner at Trout CPA, has been named to Central Penn Business Journal's 2024 Forty Under 40 list. This prestigious award recognizes professionals under the age of 40 who have made a significant impact in their industries and communities in Central Pennsylvania. Jason's inclusion in this esteemed group is a testament to his dedication, leadership, and commitment to both his profession and community.

Jason Herr has been an integral part of Trout CPA since joining the firm in 2007. As a Partner, he plays a vital role in leading the firm's Construction and Real Estate Industry Group. Jason serves clients in various industries, including construction, manufacturing and distribution, entrepreneurial businesses, retail, hospitality, and real estate entities. His expertise in tax services, coupled with his leadership in business development and client service, has made him a key contributor to Trout CPA's continued success.

Beyond his professional accomplishments, Jason is deeply committed to giving back to his community. He serves as a Board Member for Black Rock Retreat. He is actively involved in Millersville Bible Church and the Building Industry Association of Lancaster County, where he holds the position of Treasurer. Jason's dedication to community service and his efforts to inspire positive change align perfectly with the values of the Forty Under 40 awards.

McNees Wallace & Nurick announces that real estate attorney Claudia Shank is a Central Penn Business Journal 2024 Forty Under 40 recipient.

Shank is a leading land use attorney in Lancaster County known for her commitment to community service. She supports developers of residential, commercial and industrial projects in navigating the complex permitting and entitlements process, helping to bring economic growth and development to the thriving Lancaster community. Claudia also leverages her experience as a former assistant county solicitor to help Pennsylvania counties navigate a broad range of legal issues, including compliance with the Sunshine Act and the Right to Know Law.

A true servant leader and a mother of three daughters, Shank is passionate about the empowerment of girls and women, participating in many organizations that hold the same commitment.

Shank is also dedicated to advancing the interests of the residential home building industry. She currently serves as Vice President of the Building Industry Association of Lancaster County (BIA) as well as on the organization's government affairs committee. In 2021, she was honored with the BIA's Young Professional Award. She is also active with the Pennsylvania Builder's Association and the National Association of Home Builders, where she serves on the Legal Action and Land Development Committees. At McNees, she serves as a mentor to other attorneys and is as an ambassador who meaningfully connects her teammates spread across the firm's 11 offices.

"This year's Forty Under 40 are accomplished young leaders who are successful in their professions. They also know the importance of being active members of the community and are giving back and inspiring change," said Suzanne Fischer-Huettner, managing director of BridgeTower Media/Central Penn Business Journal.

Honorees were chosen by a panel of past recipients and the Central Penn Business Journal leadership team. The winners were selected based on their professional accomplishments, community service, and commitment to inspiring change.

Honorees will be celebrated at the Forty Under 40 awards ceremony on October 24 at the Hilton Harrisburg.

Building Empowerment: Women of the BIA

Our new women's group, Building Empowerment: Women of the BIA, hosted a Party at the Pine Hill Parade Home on June 18th – little did we know that this home would be the Fulton Award Winner! Over 45 guests were treated to an exclusive home tour with refreshments provided by Premier Settlements—a great way to kick off our Building Empowerment event schedule!

What's next? Building Empowerment: Women of the BIA will be represented at our upcoming BIA Building Futures event on October 17th at the Lancaster Wyndham (See pages 10-11 for more details). In future months we'll be featuring an educational event facilitated by Attorney Claudia Shank of McNees, and developing unique networking opportunities. The group is also exploring the best way to incorporate mentoring for young women in the industry.

Those who started as our focus group remain excited and fully engaged. These 10 women are now our steering committee moving forward and we are eager for our members to participate in what this group of talented, female, industry professionals is bringing to the BIA. Is there a specific education topic you'd like to see addressed? Do you have a venue idea for an activity or gathering? Feel free to contact BIA staff or any of our Steering Committee members.

We look forward to your involvement!

Associate Appreciation Month – A Note Of Thanks From PBA President Tom McCosby

September is Associate Appreciation Month at PBA, a time to recognize our associate members and show our great respect for their contribution to our association. I looked up the definition of associate and after weeding through the Internet I found a definition I really liked. "An Associate is someone who is closely connected to another person as a companion, friend or business partner." I liked this definition because it rises above a mere business partner and includes companion and friend. While we join PBA as businesspeople seeking to advance our industry, business, or career, we choose those we associate with and often become lifelong friends.

Our Associates come in many types and sizes, from subcontractors who share the mud with us, to suppliers who keep the products coming to keep the jobs moving, to realtors, lawyers and bankers who provide the expertise we don't have to move us forward from purchase to sale. Each is a vital partner in the final product.

Subcontractors, these individuals are our daily companions, producing their portion of the final product then moving on to help another. They start on day one clearing the ground and prepping the excavation, turning the work over to another until the last shingle and cabinet is perfect. Few people have the time or experience to do it all, so we are ever thankful to our subcontractors.

Next, we think of our suppliers, they provide the products and services we need to complete not just one job but many. Whether they supply construction material, concrete, lumber, or laminate. Or some portion of the larger picture, such as advertising, tools, or equipment. We can't forget what they do and why they do it, not just for income but to help build a better tomorrow.

Finally, we can't forget our white-collar friends. They design what we build, provide us with our customers, the mortgages those customers need, and the legal expertise to prevent a simple misunderstanding from ending our dreams. Just as no one can do it all or know it all, we can't forget those whose job it is to bring the new ideas, products, and training we all need to stay ahead of the Wolf (Shapiro?) at our door.

It's clear PBA and all construction would be impossible without our associates. We owe them a debt we can never repay. Because builders are often type A pushers and workers, we may forget all of the things we don't do, that our associates have to do. Be they great or small, Associates have value they add to our lives and homes, and for this we should all be truly grateful.

Tom McCosby
2024 PBA President

MY BENEFIT ADVISOR

THE EVOLVING WORKPLACE: VIEWING CHANGES POSITIVELY

The modern work environment is evolving at a remarkable pace. There are countless ways that the workplace today differs from just five years ago, and it's unlikely that the pace of change will slow anytime soon. For many people, changes in the workplace can create stress and discomfort as they are pushed to vacate long-held norms and practices and attempt new ways of working and interacting with fellow employees and company leaders.

But change is good, and it is essential to virtually all aspects of business life. Typically, companies that modify their practices to adapt to change open the doors to creative opportunities and often thrive. In contrast, those that fail to adapt to these changes can stagnate or even fail. The stale environment these companies foster stifles creativity and the birth of new and forward-thinking ideas. And often, these new ideas lead to better opportunities for overall success through more efficient operations, fresh new products, or unique, cutting-edge services.

FORCES IMPACTING A COMPANY'S NEED FOR CHANGE

The new look of today's workplace is due to various factors, each of which may impact individual companies to various degrees. Here are a few forces that may work to pressure company leadership to consider changes to established practices:

◆ Employee Demographics... For possibly the first time in history, there can be five different generations in the workplace. Each age group has a unique perspective on their work responsibilities and has specific lifestyle needs and interests. For employers, understanding this multigenerational dynamic and its implications is essential for driving innovation and maintaining cohesive and productive work groups.

◆ Changes in Workplace Structure... The pandemic changed the traditional model of work in an office environment. Today, most people work remotely, and although many firms have tried luring workers back to the office, they've had limited success. Hybrid work models are likely the norm going forward but will pressure the company's employee culture, engagement, and productivity methods and levels.

◆ Changing Focus on Diversity... The employee population of today has seen shifts in gender roles and includes an ever-widening range of racial groups and ethnic backgrounds. Many of these groups command a greater sphere of influence and power. As a result, employers are offering enhanced health benefits, flexible work-from-home arrangements, and racial, gender, and pay equity. Employers have recognized that creating an inclusive culture is essential to the success of their company and its long-term growth and profitability since today's employees are quick to begin searching for new employment if they feel their needs are not being met.

◆ Changes in Government... Whether on a local or national level, changes in government invariably involve a shift in political agenda, which often impacts how businesses operate. In obvious terms, this can refer to compliance issues, but employers also need to look carefully for indirect and more subtle impacts.

In short, employers should view change as good. Today's workplace demands constant attention to changing dynamics, but the reward for adaptation to needed changes often means the difference between success and failure.

A LEGISLATIVE SUMMARY

Availability of (NPDES) General Permit for Discharges of Stormwater Associated with Construction Activities (PAG-02)

On August 31, 2024, the Department of Environmental Protection (DEP) published the final, reissued NPDES PAG-02 General Permit for Discharges of Stormwater Associated with Construction Activities in the Pennsylvania Bulletin for a new 5-year term. The PAG-02 General Permit will become effective on December 8, 2024, and will expire on December 7, 2029. Current PAG-02 General Permits will expire on December 7, 2024.

Persons with existing coverage under the PAG-02 General Permit will be required to submit a renewal NOI (notice of intent) form to maintain continued coverage under the reissued PAG-02 General Permit by December 7, 2024. DEP or your County Conservation Districts should send notification to all existing PAG-02 permittees explaining the changes to the terms and conditions of General Permit coverage.

The following additional significant changes were made to the final PAG-02 General Permit documents in comparison to the draft General Permit published on March 9, 2024:

- Submission to Municipalities—The draft PAG-02 proposed a requirement to submit annual reports and Notices of Termination (NOT) to municipalities. In response to public comments, the Department has removed this requirement from the final PAG-02.
- Landowner Acknowledgement—The draft PAG-02 proposed a new "Landowner Acknowledgement" section of the PAG-02 Notice of Intent (NOI) that the landowners of a project site would sign to demonstrate the applicant has authority to conduct earth disturbance activities, if the applicant was not the sole owner of land comprising the project site. In response to public comments, the Department has removed this section from the final PAG-02 NOI.
- Legal Instrument Recording—Under 25 Pa. Code § 102.8(m)(2) (relating to PCSM requirements), permittees must record a legal instrument identifying post-construction stormwater management (PCSM) stormwater control measures (SCM) on properties. In the 2019 version of PAG-02, this instrument was required to be recorded within 45 days of permit issuance. The draft PAG-02 published March 9, 2024, proposed that the legal instrument recording occur and the recorded documentation be submitted to the Department or a delegated county conservation district (CCD) prior to the scheduling of the required pre-construction meeting to aid in ensuring that this requirement will be satisfied and does not prevent the approval of an NOT. In response to comments received, the Department is, in the final PAG-02, making an exception to this requirement for utility projects and other projects that receive written approval from the Department or a CCD. If the exception applies, the permittee will be required to record the instrument and submit the recorded documentation to the Department or a CCD within 45 days of PAG-02 coverage approval.

- Residential Impervious—The Department has removed questions on the final PAG-02 NOI concerning whether the maximum impervious allowed on a lot or a factor of safety was used for planned impervious areas. PCSM Module 2 will be updated to include a table of lots and impervious areas for multi-lot development projects. If the stormwater analysis and design of SCMs considers either the maximum allowable impervious area under a local ordinance or the maximum impervious on a lot, as designed, is at least 10% greater than the planned impervious, the permittee would not be responsible for amending the approved PCSM Plan and PAG-02 coverage or documenting future changes on record drawings, assuming the changes are within the factor of safety.
- Monthly Color Photographs—The draft PAG-02 proposed that color photographs be taken at least monthly of best management practices and SCMs. In the final PAG-02, the Department has modified this requirement to allow for alternative approaches when approved by the Department or a CCD, generally for large projects.
- Effective Date—The Department has clarified in the final PAG-02 that the requirements for site inspectors to be qualified and for confirmation testing of infiltration SCMs go into effect on December 8, 2025, 1 year following the effective date of the final PAG-02, to provide adequate time to prepare for these new requirements.
- Confirmation Testing for Infiltration Capacity—The Department has decided to eliminate the 20% threshold on ponding or drawdown times when evaluating infiltration SCMs through confirmation testing for infiltration capacity and instead allow the licensed professional the discretion to determine if the SCM is infiltrating in a manner consistent with the design.
